SPEECH-LANGUAGE PATHOLOGY

Career Development workshop for Undergraduates in Linguistics, Language Studies, Cognitive Science and Psychology

This presentation will include information on what speech-language pathologists do, what populations they serve, and the benefits of the field. It will also review the relevance of linguistics in the profession, and provide guidance on how to apply to graduate programs in speech-language pathology. There will be time for questions. Anyone who is interested in learning more about the profession is welcome to join.
